Course listing and graduation requirements
This document includes applicant academic requirements for the national Board of Certification (BOC) exam and for an initial state Athletic Trainer credential (licensure, certification, or registration). Most states require both the national certification and state credentialing to practice as an Athletic Trainer. Information for licensure by reciprocity may be found within the individual state statutes, rules, or board websites. Some non-academic requirements are provided but may not be complete. The following information does not include other pertinent non-academic requirements of individual state boards for eligibility of examination or licensure such as, but not limited to, fees, good moral character requirements, references, sponsors, transcripts, CPR certification, continuing education, background checks, social security number, US citizenship, or minimum age. Please note that although we strive to keep this information up to date, requirements are subject to change without notice. It is in the student’s best interest to confirm any information provided here with the appropriate state licensing board (links to state board websites provided).

“Currently, 49 states and the District of Columbia regulate the practice of athletic training. Individuals must be legally recognized by the appropriate state regulatory agency prior to practicing athletic training. The BOC exam is recognized by all Athletic Trainer state regulatory agencies to meet their exam requirement. Compliance with state regulatory requirements is mandatory and the only avenue to legal athletic training practice.” – Board of Certification Exam (BOC) for the Athletic Trainer

Eligibility for the BOC exam is contingent upon completion of an athletic training program accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of Athletic Training Education (CAATE) that must instruct the competencies within the curriculum. Also, see BOC candidates webpage and the BOC Exam Handbook.

- Passage of the certifying exam is a requirement for licensure in most states.
- Applicants for the BOC must complete an entry-level athletic training education program accredited by the CAATE.
- The current standard for Professional AT Programs is a CAATE-accredited professional athletic training program that results in the granting of a master’s degree in Athletic Training. (Compliance with this standard is required by 2022, meaning baccalaureate programs may not admit, enroll, or matriculate students into such programs after the start of the fall term of 2022.)
- Degrees in physical therapy, exercise science, strength and conditioning or others do not qualify the candidate to sit for the BOC examination.
- The Bloomsburg University Master of Science in Clinical Athletic Training program is CAATE-accredited.
- There are no specific experiential learning requirements for eligibility to sit for the BOC exam; however, graduation from a CAATE-accredited program is required to sit for the exam and CAATE-accredited programs include clinical education experiences.
  - Bloomsburg University’s Clinical Athletic Training program admission criteria includes a minimum of 200 hours of direct clinical observation/experience under the guidance of a Certified Athletic Trainer.
  - A requirement for each of BU’s Supervised Clinical courses (EXERSCI 591-594) is to successfully pass all of the required clinical proficiencies. Failure to complete all clinical proficiencies assigned for each course will result in an automatic failure of the course and subsequent dismissal from the Clinical Athletic Training Program.

Besides passing the BOC exam, to practice as an athletic trainer in most states, the individual must also be credentialed (licensure, certification, or registration) within the state. California is currently the only non-regulated state. State regulation always takes precedence over certification standards. Compliance with state regulatory requirements is mandatory and the only avenue to legal athletic training practice.

National Athletic Trainers’ Association (NATA) certification requires graduation with a bachelor’s or master’s degree from an accredited professional athletic training education program and pass a comprehensive test administered by the Board of Certification (BOC). Once certified, athletic trainers must meet ongoing continuing education requirements in order to remain certified. Athletic trainers must also work in collaboration with a physician and within their state practice act.
Because rules and regulations may change at any time, it is highly recommended that you contact the appropriate state entity listed below to confirm this information. You may find more licensing information for each state at http://www.bocatc.org/state-regulation.
